

Torreblanca, Castellón – Showcase, operational base, and prototype of the 21st-Century Ideal City

Here is how I, the undersigned, Paul Elvere DELSART, act for the promotion and international visibility of the small town of Torreblanca (province of Castellón, Spain) through my works: within my cultural universe of fiction-reality (metaverse) called The Green Empire of the East and the West, and within my movement “The Reconquista of Small Towns and Villages” (also called Reconquista EL4DEV or Reconquista 3.0):

I have made Torreblanca the heart and the starting point of the movement. In my books (published in French, English, and Spanish), Torreblanca is explicitly presented as the center of a new rural empire where each small town and village once again becomes an autonomous and thriving city-state. The narrative blends fiction, cultural manifesto, and operational roadmap.

I have developed an alternative local development plan dedicated to Torreblanca (published on several platforms and presented by email to Torreblanca’s town hall). I continuously publish web pages and PDF documents focused on “the Reconquest of small towns and villages starting from Torreblanca, Castellón”, which anchors the approach in this specific territory (the documents are in French, English, and Spanish).

I associate Torreblanca with prototypes of experimental infrastructures and governance. Beyond the symbolic, I link Torreblanca to technical concepts: ecological networks (LE PAILLON SOURCE tourism and production complexes), vertical agro-climatic green structures called Vegetal Calderas, the creation of vast Bioclimatic Corridors extending from the Prat de Cabanes-Torreblanca Natural Park, a stable digital currency backed by tangible assets called the GREEN COIN EL4DEV, a rethought local economy, international intellectual cooperation, and participatory governance - all tools capable of transforming small, isolated towns and villages into true interconnected and autonomous city-states.

I amplify visibility through multilingual and cross-platform communication (currently in 3 languages but many more in the future). Messages, excerpts, and announcements repeat the formula “A new European and global Reconquest is being born in Spain from Torreblanca, Castellón”, disseminated in French, English, and Spanish, via social networks, on Google Play, Amazon, in numerous online bookstores worldwide, and across a network of thematic websites. This systematically associates the town of Torreblanca with the name of the movement and with my ecological, social, cultural, intellectual, and entrepreneurial empire: The Green Empire of the East and the West or the EL4DEV Confederation.

The third volume, multilingual, entitled Reconquista 3.0 – The Empire of City-States, is framed around the ancient Platonic concept of “city-states” and once again anchored in Torreblanca, Castellón. This new development is spread across various platforms (in eBook format and in 3 languages).

A comprehensive work bringing together all narratives about the Reconquista EL4DEV will soon be published on numerous platforms, in both print and digital formats, also in 3 languages, reinforcing the idea that Torreblanca is the laboratory of the narrative and my strategy.

In short, I am transforming Torreblanca into both a showcase and an operational base: a central narrative symbol, a field of experimentation, and a communication hub for my Reconquista EL4DEV.

Torreblanca, Castellón becomes the symbolic capital of The Green Empire of the East and the West. It is not a political capital in the classical sense (since it is a horizontal system), but rather a moral and logistical reference center.

Like Athens for Plato, Torreblanca would become a prototype of the ideal city. Over time, Torreblanca would remain a symbolic mother-city (like Delphi for the Greeks), while each city-state would be fully autonomous.

EBOOK 1: EL4DEV – The Reconquista of Small Towns and Villages

And if the rebirth of our civilization began in forgotten villages?

In a visionary mini manifesto blending social fiction, political essay, and strategic guide, Paul Elvere DELSART, also known as Henry HARPER, the Green Emperor of the East and the West, invites us on a peaceful epic: the Reconquista of Small Towns and Villages.

Through prophetic and poetic language, the author outlines the contours of a tangible civilizational project: breathing new life and sovereignty into neglected rural communities. Living infrastructure, participatory governance, ecological currency, societal diplomacy - each chapter is both a call to action and an act of regeneration.

More than just a small book, this is a work with two faces, both a symbolic narrative and an operational strategy, that elevates rural life as a driving force for global transformation - a guide for building tomorrow's world, starting from the local.

Torreblanca, Castellón, in Spain becomes the heart of a new empire where every village can once again shine as a radiant city-state.

EBOOK 2: Reconquista EL4DEV – The Rural Empire

What if the future of Europe were decided... in its villages?

In a context where ancient imperial dreams are reborn, driven by secret alliances and invisible strategies, Europe wavers. Orchestrated migrations, deindustrialization, social fractures; the chess game seems lost from the start. And yet, in the face of this threat, another vision emerges. Paul Elvere DELSART, social engineer and speculative storyteller, envisions a peaceful Reconquista: that of small municipalities, transformed into prosperous rural city-states, connected by innovative ecological infrastructures: LE PAPILLON SOURCE and the Vegetal Calderas.

From Geneva to Naxos, from Torreblanca to the shores of the Maghreb, The Rural Empire follows a network of mayors, artisans, architects, and citizens joining forces to build the Green Empire of the East and the West, an empire without an army, founded on cooperation, justice, and innovation.

Blending geopolitical thriller, concrete utopia, and manifesto for a civilizational rebirth, this short novel intertwines intrigue, foresight, and political poetry to raise a fundamental question: what if true power came not from capitals, but from the roots?

EBOOK 3: Reconquista 3.0 – The Empire of City-States

At a time when metropolises centralize power, when the countryside is emptying, and crises follow one another, it is time to restore to small towns and villages their role as the beating heart of civilization.

Inspired by the wisdom of Plato and fueled by the boldness of contemporary innovation, Paul Elvere DELSART, also known as Henry HARPER, envisions a world where every small municipality becomes an autonomous city-state, connected to others through networks of solidarity, ecology, and intellectual cooperation. This ambitious structural project, named the EL4DEV Confederation, sketches nothing less than a civilizational rebirth: an ethical knowledge-based economy built on social entrepreneurship, international cooperation, shared multifunctional infrastructures, vegetal proliferation, highly participatory governance, and a youth entrusted with a chivalric mission of a new era to regenerate the world.

From Ancient Greece to Europe in 2050, passing through the emergence of the flagship city of Torreblanca, Castellón in Spain, this book, at the crossroads between short essay and novella, maps out the path of a global transformation: forgotten villages could become the foundational stones of the last, most powerful, and most just of Empires: the Green Empire of the East and the West.

Pragmatic utopia, manifesto, call to action – The Reconquista EL4DEV, or Reconquista of Small Towns and Villages, is an invitation to rethink politics, economics, and spirituality in our declining societies. And to understand that the true revolution begins... at a human scale.
