

Elon MUSK in Torreblanca: when fiction becomes the engine of reality

Analysis of the book “Elon MUSK in Torreblanca – A fiction that acts on reality” by Paul Elvere DELSART (October 2025)

In “Elon MUSK in Torreblanca – A fiction that acts on reality”, Paul Elvere DELSART proposes a unique literary and philosophical experiment: to transform a small Spanish municipality into a prototype for a new model of participatory civilization.

This is not merely a work of speculative fiction; it is an operative narrative, a literary work designed to act upon the very reality it describes.

A performative fiction: Literature as a lever for action

For Paul Elvere DELSART, the boundary between fiction and social engineering disappears. The text becomes performative fiction. It doesn't simply describe a project, it activates it.

The author imagines a certain Henry HARPER, a fictional alter ego, who develops from the municipality of Torreblanca (Castellón, Spain) a vast program called EL4DEV.

This metasystem proposes to rebuild nations from the ground up, starting with small municipalities, through a network of local, ecological, educational, and diplomatic initiatives.

Behind the dialogues of five academics from the University Jaume I of Castellón de la Plana unfolds a new kind of experiment: fiction as a tool for social engineering, a Live Action Role-Playing game meant to foster unprecedented forms of collective behavior.

The story functions as a protocol: it guides thought, inspires real actors, and transforms how people see their territory. Torreblanca becomes both a tangible Mediterranean municipality and an utopian city-state, symbolic capital of what Paul Elvere DELSART calls “The Green Empire of the East and the West.”

Torreblanca: The prototype of a green Silicon Valley

In this conceptual short novel, Torreblanca is not a decorative fiction, but an operative territory.

It represents the first cell of a global network of cooperative ecosystems: interconnected municipalities combining technology, ecology, art, and spirituality.

The goal? To found a green Silicon Valley, not dedicated to profit and speed, but to societal reconstruction and ecological rebirth.

At the heart of the project lies the Think and Do Tank “LE PAPILLON SOURCE EL4DEV”, envisioned as a center for experimentation combining territorial intelligence, ecological architecture, regenerative agriculture and societal diplomacy.

The initial infrastructures, the famous Vegetal Calderas, are at once ecological towers and symbols of the regeneration of life: a fusion of science, art, and spirituality.

Between utopia, art and politics

Paul Elvere DELSART deliberately blurs categories: his work is simultaneously a novel of ideas, an ecological manifesto, a social engineering plan, and a conceptual performance.

He envisions a Mediterranean renaissance founded on municipal cooperation, the creation of a solidarity-based currency, the GREEN COIN EL4DEV and a global system for data exchange called the BIG SMART DATA EL4DEV.

Yet beyond these structures, it is the symbolic dimension that dominates.

The book turns myth into a tool of public policy, and the collective dream into a program of governance.

It stands in the lineage of active utopias, from Plato to Buckminster Fuller, while adding a participatory and digital dimension suited to our time.

An invitation to Elon MUSK: Between Gaia and Prometheus

One of the most fascinating aspects of the text lies in its explicit invitation to Elon MUSK.

In the final chapters, Henry HARPER, and through him, Paul Elvere DELSART, imagines an alliance between the technological might of the SpaceX founder and the humanist and multidimensional vision of EL4DEV.

He sees it as a meeting between Prometheus, conqueror of celestial fire, and Gaia, the living Earth in need of regeneration.

MUSK is invited to become tangibly involved in Torreblanca to co-develop the Vegetal Calderas, the GREEN COIN EL4DEV and the BIG SMART DATA EL4DEV, transforming the municipality into a planetary laboratory of the future.

This proposal, both symbolic and strategic, seeks to unite the strength of Silicon Valley with collective consciousness, technology with wisdom and speed with slowness.

The imagined alliance between Elon MUSK and Henry HARPER becomes the myth of a reconciled 21st century: a world where science serves the poetry of life.

Between the power of myth and the risk of misunderstanding

However, the project's strength is also its fragility.

The deliberate blurring between reality and fiction can disorient institutions and the general public.

Torreblanca risks being dismissed as an ideological dream if the fiction does not generate tangible actions: experimental farms, green infrastructures and cultural events.

Paul Elvere DELSART is aware of this; indeed, it forms the core of the suspense: will fiction be able to produce the reality it proclaims? And what if Elon MUSK were to answer the call?

A manifest work for a poetic civilization

This is not a mere book; it is a device.

A system-work that proposes to reinvent civilization through language, cooperation and collective imagination.

Through his meditative style and global ambition, Paul Elvere DELSART follows in the tradition of visionary builders from Saint-Simon to Fuller, while inventing a new genre: the operative narrative, where every word calls for action.

Thus, Torreblanca Castellón becomes the metaphor for a world to be rebuilt, a seed of hope at the heart of the Mediterranean.

And within this intertwining of reality and myth, one question remains:

What if, tomorrow, the green Silicon Valley of Torreblanca Castellón became the living heart of a new humanity?
